

UNIT HISTORICAL SKETCH

684TH MEDICAL COMPANY

COLUMBUS, OHIO

684TH MEDICAL COMPANY

The 684th Medical Company was organized in the Ohio National Guard on May 14, 1921 in Westerville, Ohio as the 134th Ambulance Company, 112th Medical Regiment. The company was first stationed in the Westerville Town Hall and later in a former residence on East College Avenue until the state armory was built in 1938.

The unit was equipped with horse-drawn ambulances when it was organized. Between 1934 and 1938, trucks were issued to the unit and horse-drawn equipment was phased out. In 1937, a reorganization took place and changed all of the separate medical units in the 37th Division to lettered companies. Concurrently, the 134th Ambulance Company became Company D, 112th Medical Regiment.

On October 15, 1940, the company was inducted into federal service and sent to Camp Shelby, Miss. for training. In February 1942, the 37th Division reorganized and Company D was redesignated as Company C, 112th Medical Battalion. Company C was one of three collecting companies in the battalion and served as the forward echelon of the division medical service. They were the connecting links in the chain of evacuation between infantry aid stations and division clearing stations.

The company served in this role during fighting on New Georgia, Bougainville and Luzon in the South Pacific. During the war, it was twice awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation for support of the 37th Infantry Division on Bougainville and Luzon. The company was inactivated in December 1945.

The company was reorganized in Westerville on October 9, 1947 as Company D, 112th Medical Battalion. Shortly after, in 1949, the company was redesignated as Clearing Company, 112th Medical Battalion. The unit returned to active service in January 1952 and was sent to Camp Polk, La. for training. While the unit did not go to Korea, most of its Soldiers were rotated as individual replacements.

After returning to Ohio in 1954, the company underwent a number of reorganizations in 1959 and 1963. Finally, in 1968, when the 37th Infantry Division was removed from Ohio's troop allotment, the company was reorganized as the 684th Medical Company.

The unit remained under this designation until 1995 when it became Company C, 118th Medical Battalion. Company C returned to active duty in 2003 and served in Iraq the following year where it earned its third Meritorious Unit Commendation.

The most recent reorganization occurred on Sept. 1, 2007, when the unit returned to its historic 684th Medical Company designation. For the first time in its history, the unit moved from its home in Westerville to Columbus.

The company was once again ordered into federal service in 2011 and deployed to Afghanistan where it earned a fourth Meritorious Unit Commendation.

HERALDIC ITEMS

DISTINCTIVE UNIT INSIGNIA

Description/Blazon: A silver color metal and enamel device 1 inch (2.54 cm) in height overall consisting of a rectangular shield divided per chevron reversed, maroon above white, on the maroon portion the skull and horns of a Texas Longhorn steer in silver; on the white portion a conventionalized poppy and fleur-de-lis both of maroon. Attached below the shield a maroon arced segmented scroll inscribed "AUXILIUM SEMPER ADEST" in silver letters.

Symbolism: Maroon and white are the colors of the Medical Department. The skull and horns of the Texas Longhorn represent service on the Mexican Border, and the poppy and fleur-de-lis symbolize service in Flanders and in France, respectively, during World War I. The motto translates to "Help Always Ready."

Background: The distinctive unit insignia was originally approved for the 112th Medical Regiment on 3 July 1928. It was redesignated for the 112th Medical Battalion on 3 September 1943. It was redesignated for the 112th Medical Group on 25 September 1974. The insignia was redesignated for the 112th Medical Brigade on 14 August 1975. The insignia was redesignated for the 112th Medical Battalion on 1 September 2023.

COAT OF ARMS

Description/Blazon:

Shield: Per chevron reversed Sanguine and Argent, in chief the skull and horns of a longhorn steer of the second, in base a conventionalized poppy and a fleur-de-lis of the first.

Crest: That for the regiments of the Ohio National Guard: On a wreath of the colors Argent and Sanguine a sheaf of seventeen arrows of the first bound by a sprig of buckeye fruited Proper.

Motto: AUXILIUM SEMPER ADEST (Help Always Ready).

Symbolism: Maroon and white are the colors of the Medical Department. The skull and horns of the Texas Longhorn represent service on the Mexican Border, and the poppy and fleur-de-lis symbolize service in Flanders and in France, respectively, during World War I.

Background: The coat of arms was originally approved on 16 January 1968 and cancelled on 7 October 1974. The coat of arms was redesignated for the 112th Medical Battalion effective 01 September 2023.

SHOULDER SLEEVE INSIGNIA

Description/Blazon: On a buff vertical octagonal-shaped embroidered device, arcing outwardly at top and bottom, a blue wavy horizontal band bearing three buff stars, between in base an arrowhead and in chief a polestar, all red; all within a 1/8 inch (.32 cm) red border. Overall dimensions are 2 inches (5.08 cm) in width and 3 inches (7.62 cm) in length.

Symbolism: Buff and red are the colors traditionally used by the Sustainment units. The wavy band suggests water, alluding to a "large creek," the meaning of the name Ohio and the location of the Brigade. The three stars represent the unit's campaign credits in World War I, World War II, and the Global War on Terrorism. The arrowhead signifies the Brigade's service in the fight for Luzon during World War II and the motto "Logistic Warriors." The polestar denotes the unit's leadership to guide service members and deployment capabilities worldwide.

Background: The shoulder sleeve insignia was approved for the 371st Sustainment Brigade effective 1 September 2007.
