Company E, 237th Support Battalion ~ Springfield

Logan grew up in and still resides in Franklin County. “I first joined the National Guard for college funds, but after these five years, I’m really enjoying be able to serve my community and country during this time of need,” she said. As a civilian, she owns a photography company and recently received her master’s degree. Her business was impacted by the recent pandemic because a majority of her work is wedding photography. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Logan is providing food packaging and distribution support to The Foodbank, Inc. in Dayton, Ohio. Logan said the most rewarding part of supporting the food bank mission has been “seeing all the diversity coming through to the food bank for help and being able to do my part.”

Ohioans serving Ohioans

Ohio National Guard Soldiers and Airmen are members of your community. They are local students, teachers, law enforcement, retail workers, business owners, your co-workers, family, friends and neighbors. When the Ohio National Guard responds to an emergency or natural disaster, it’s Ohioans serving Ohioans right in their own communities. In this series, meet some of the front-line heroes serving during the current COVID-19 relief efforts, as well as a few of our members who’ve supported past humanitarian missions.
