

UNIT HISTORICAL SKETCH

812TH ENGINEER COMPANY

LORAIN, OHIO

812TH ENGINEER COMPANY

The 812th Engineer Company was organized Feb. 2, 1926, in Akron as Headquarters Company, 73d Infantry Brigade, 37th Division. On Mar. 1, 1928, the company was reorganized as Company K, 145th Infantry. The unit remained under this designation until 1959. The company was ordered into federal service on Oct. 15, 1940, and sent to Camp Shelby, Miss. for training. During World War II, Company K fought in the battles of New Georgia, Bougainville and Luzon, earning the Philippine Presidential Unit Citation.

The company was reorganized in Akron on July 17, 1947, and returned to active service for the Korean War in 1952. As part of the 37th Infantry Division, Company K was sent to Camp Polk, La. for training. While the Buckeye Division did not rotate to Korea as a unit, nearly all of the unit's members rotated as individual replacements. The unit reorganized in the Ohio National Guard in January 1954. On Sept. 1, 1959, the unit was redesignated as Company B, 2d Battle Group, 145th Infantry and was again redesignated on April 1, 1963, as Company B, 2d Battalion, 145th Infantry. On Nov. 15, 1965, the company was reorganized as a detachment of Company A, 2d Battalion, 145th Infantry.

On Feb. 15, 1968, the 37th Infantry Division was removed from Ohio's force structure, resulting in the reorganization of the detachment as the 2d and 3d Engineer Platoons, Company B, 112th Engineer Battalion. On June 1, 1971, the detachment was consolidated with the parent company, located in Kent, Ohio, and the consolidated unit was reorganized as Company B. The Kent element was organized on Feb. 10, 1937, as Company C, 112th Quartermaster Regiment and fought in World War II as the 3583d Quartermaster Truck Company and earned the Meritorious Unit Commendation in the European Theater. Additionally, the unit was cited in the order of the day of the Belgian Army for action at Antwerp. Prior to the consolidation, the unit had been designated as Company B since 1959.

Company B was moved to the Stow Armory in 1982 and then to the Brook Park Armory in 1989. On Sept. 1, 1995, the unit was consolidated with Company D, 112th Engineer Battalion in Lorain. Company D was organized in Lorain on Nov. 10, 1947, and also went to Camp Polk with the 37th Infantry Division from 1952 to 1954. The company was reorganized on Feb. 15, 1968, as Company D, 112th Engineer Battalion.

Company B was mobilized for Operation Noble Eagle from 2003 to 2005. On Sept. 1, 2007, the unit was reorganized as the 837th Engineer Company and completed a mobilization to Afghanistan from 2013 to 2014, where it earned the Meritorious Unit Commendation. On Sept. 1, 2016, the unit was reorganized and redesignated under its present designation, the 812th Engineer Company.

HERALDIC ITEMS

DISTINCTIVE UNIT INSIGNIA

Description/Blazon: A Silver color metal and enamel device 1 9/32 inches (3.25 cm) in height overall consisting of a shield blazoned: Per chevron Sable and ermine, a chevron engrailed counterchanged, in chief three billets palewise Argent and in base a lion rampant Or. Attached below the shield a Black scroll turned Silver inscribed "BELLO AC PACE PARATUS" in Silver letters.

Symbolism: The field is taken from the coat of arms of General Moses Cleveland, who founded the City of Cleveland and who also, on August 2, 1779, was commissioned by Congress as Captain of a Company of Sappers and Miners. The three billets represent the pillars set in the roads leading up the hill to Montfaucon, which pillars were blown out by this Regiment. The lion is the lion of Belgium and served as a reminder that this Regiment, serving under King Albert, helped to free Belgium from the invader. The motto is reminiscent of the Cleveland Grays "Semper Paratus" and is peculiarly appropriate for a National Guard Regiment.

Background: The distinctive unit insignia was originally approved for the 112th Engineer Regiment on 26 September 1925. It was amended to change the wording regarding the method of wear by enlisted personnel on 3 December 1929. It was redesignated for the 112th Engineer Combat Battalion on 30 April 1945. The insignia was redesignated for the 112th Engineer Battalion on 4 January 1965.

COAT OF ARMS

Description/Blazon:

Shield: Per chevron Sable and ermine, a chevron engrailed counterchanged, in chief three billets palewise Argent and in base a lion rampant Or armed and langued Gules.

Crest: That for the regiments and separate battalions of the Ohio Army National Guard: On a wreath of the colors Argent and Sable, a sheaf of seventeen arrows Argent bound by a sprig of buckeye (aesculus glabra) fructed Proper (two leaves bursting burr).

Motto: BELLO AC PACE PARATUS (Prepared in Peace and War).

Symbolism: The field is taken from the coat of arms of General Moses Cleveland, who founded the City of Cleveland and who also, on August 2, 1779, was commissioned by Congress as Captain of a Company of Sappers and Miners. The three billets represent the pillars set in the roads leading up the hill to Montfaucon, which pillars were blown out by this Regiment. The lion is the lion of Belgium and served as a reminder that this Regiment, serving under King Albert, helped to free Belgium from the invader. The motto is reminiscent of the Cleveland Grays "Semper Paratus" and is peculiarly appropriate for a National Guard Regiment. The crest is that of the Ohio Army National Guard.

Background: The coat of arms was originally approved for the 112th Engineer Regiment on 7 May 1923. It was redesignated for the 112th Engineer Combat Battalion on 28 April 1945. The insignia was redesignated for the 112th Engineer Battalion on 4 January 1965.

SHOULDER SLEEVE INSIGNIA

Description/Blazon: On a scarlet disc 2 inches (5.08cm) in diameter two white towers, each embattled of three merlons and with scarlet windows and entranceways, crossed in saltire all within a 1/8 inch (.32cm) white border.

Symbolism: The colors scarlet and white are used for Engineers. The two crossed towers, forming a saltire - a symbol used during the Crusades to reward those who scaled town walls - refer to the combat aspects of the Engineers. Furthermore, the saltire, a form of brace, alludes to engineering support to other components within the organization. The saltire formed by the two crossed towers simulates an X, the map symbol used for brigades and also simulates the Roman numeral ten (X) which with the three merlons of each tower alludes to sixteen (16), the numerical designation of the organization.

Background: The shoulder sleeve insignia was approved on 4 December 1969.
